

Young Audiences Need GREAT Arts!

International Performing Arts for Youth (IPAY) is the leading service organization in North America dedicated to professional performing arts for young audiences. IPAY has more than 250 members—producing companies, artist managers, performing arts presenters, individual artists, and students—from thirty-five states and eight countries.

IPAY's mission is to support and promote the highest-quality performing arts for young audiences in North America. We embrace all performing arts—dance, theater, music, opera, storytelling, puppetry, and performance art—from diverse cultures and traditions.

What We Do

- Promote performing arts for young audiences through advocacy, research, and other activities.
- Produce an annual juried Showcase in North America, featuring full productions of shows for young audiences from 20 international companies. The Showcase Exhibit Room provides access to nearly 100 artists managers, artists, and arts agencies.
- Provide professional development and networking opportunities for the performing arts for youth community.
